Think of it-only fifteen more buying days before Christmas. We are doing our part in having the goods ready and facilitating your seeing and buying. The store is packed with the best we know how to select. Good. substantial, acceptable and appreciative gifts can now be selected to better advantage than at any time between now and Christ-

WOODWARD & LOTHROP.

HOLIDAY UMBRELLAS ENGRAVED FREE. All Umbrellas sold by us during the Holidays will be engraved with three initials or less without extra charge, and the price of the umbrella will not be raised to pay for it. We make this liberal offer only for the holidays. In this connection let us say we have the largest, finest and most attractive stock of Umbrellas we ever carried—and we be-lieve it is not equalled in this city—either in point of quantity, quality or moderate prices. $1 to $25 each.

Sr. Louis, Mo., Dec. 6 .- This morning Messrs. Powderly, Wright and Beaumont, representing the Knights of Labor, met the demand committee of the farmers' and laborers' union and the basis of federation between the farmers and the knights was agreed upon. The resolutions upon which the farmers had agreed were read over to the rep-resentatives of the Knights and with very slight modifications were accepted as satisfactory. Then it was agreed that the farmers should appoint a legislative committee of two to act in conjunction with the legislative committee of the knights at Washington to secure legislation in accordance with the views of both bodies.

THE SILCOTT DEFALCATION. Sergeant-at-Arms Leedom Before the Special House Committee. THE COMMITTEE IN SECRET SESSION-NOT EVEN MR, LEEDOM'S COUNSEL ADMITTED-EXAMINING THE WITNESSES-AMOUNT OF THE OFFICIAL DE-FALCATION IS $71.800.

The special committee of the House of Representatives to investigate the defalcation of Cashier Silcott met in the room of the House committee on public lands at 10 o'clock this this morning at 9 o'clock and remained morning. Every one but the members of the committee and the witness under examination in the office of the chief clerk, hung the at the time was excluded from the room, and undraped portrait of Jefferson Davis, Secretary Boulanger has been engaged to lecture in the a messenger was placed in the corridor United States and that he will deliver the first to guard the door. Mr. Leedom, the a messenger was placed in the corridor of War, from 1853 to 1857, under Presisergeant-at-arms, was first examined. He some reference to the announcement appeared with Phil Thompson, whom he had that came flashing along the wires last night employed as his attorney. The committee refused to admit the attorney. Mr. Leedom was president of the late southern confederacy, put through an examination which lasted from about 10:30 until 12 o'clock. He made a complete statement of all he knew of the case, substantially as it was stated in THE STAR yester-

WHO LOSES THE MONEY-$71,800. When the committee had finished with him Assistant United States Treasurer Whelpley, who had been kept in waiting outside, was called into the room and put upon the stand. The purpose of taking his testimony was to get the treasury view as to whether the loss falls upon the government or upon the individual members of Congress who signed the receipts, according to custom, before the money was

Before the committee met an examination of the safe was made and it was found that the deficiency in the official accounts was $71,800. This, of course, does not include any losses by private depositors.

IT IS THE PURPOSE OF THE COMMITTEE to act as promptly as possible. Their object will be to fix the criminal responsibility for the defalcation, which it does not take long to do, and then to determine where the loss shall fall. They want to determine positively what the government's responsibility is—whether Mr. Silcott was the agent of the individual members or of the government. If they decide that he was an agent of the government they will propose that an appropriation bill be passed to pay the members their salaries, leaving the government to look to the bonds-men of the defaulting cashier and of the sergeant-at-arms to make good the loss. If, on the other hand, they decide that the members receipts absolve the government from responsi bility for the payments there are several suggestions as to how the matter will be settled, one of which is for the House to vote the money to pay its members. This plan will meet with opposition if it is proposed on the floor of the House.

MEMBERS ON THE ANXIOUS BENCH. Most of the members are anxious for the noney and the committee will settle the matreport to the House on Monday, and if the loss is put upon the government an appropriation will be passed at once for the amount and the new sergeant-at-arms will begin paying as soon as the bill can be passed by the Scnate and re-ceive the approval of the President. If this course is not followed the new sergeant-atarms, Mr. Holmes, will have to begin his account with the December salaries and can make no payments until the end of the month. Mr. Holmes was at the sergeant-at-arms' office today and is ready to begin business as soon as the affairs are straightened out in some

This morning members were still crowding about the paying teller's desk, not in the hope of getting any money, but to be on hand if any of their checks or drafts came in to take them up and save them from protest. They have given out these checks and don't know at what moment they may be presented for payment. The only way to prevent their going to protest, when it is not known in what bank they may have been cashed, is to be on hand to take them up. This occasions many hours of anxious waiting. the force in that division. He is still employed Some of these checks have been sent by mem bers to their families to bring them on to Wash- Davis very well. He said this morning: ington and it is a question in most cases whether the checks have been cashed at who ever served. He was a kind, social man, some bank or whether their families are on their way with nothing but I never heard a complaint from one of the worthless checks to pay their expenses with.

A deal of telegraphing is being done to stop checks and to get money or to ascertain whether any families of members of Congress are stranded on the road. Here is where the books of telegraph franks that most of the members have come in handy, for in their present straitened circumstances the expense of telegraphing would be a heavy draft on thei resources. FORTUNATE AND UNFORTUNATE CONGRESSMEN. Many of the members who were depending on their accounts at the sergeant-at-arms' office to meet their ordinary expenses are stranded. Some of those members who are fortunate enough to have bank accounts in the sound depositories of Washington were prompt in offering to cash checks for some of their unfortunate colleagues. A few only of the members had drawn out their full accounts, includ-ing the December pay, before the crash came. Roswell P. Flower and General Spinola were among these fortunate ones. General Spinola drew all that was due him on Tuesday. IN MEMORY OF MR. DAVIS. A Meeting of Mississipplans in This City This Afternoon.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock a meeting of Senators and Representatives from Mississippi, together with a number of other prominent Mississippians now in this city, was held in the parlors of the Metropolitan hotel to take appropriate action on the death of Jefferson Davis. No formal organization inent Mississippians now in this city, was was made, but remarks suitable to the occasion were made by a number of gentlemen, and a series of resolutions were drawn up and passed.

PRINCETON'S CHAMPIONS COMING. They Will Play Foot Ball With a Picked Team in this City.

Word has been received from the Princeton foot ball team that they will be here for a game with a team of local players tomorrow after- Davis was the leader of the south and Judah P. noon. The game will be played at Capitol Benjamin was its orator. Those were exciting park and will undoubtedly attract a large crowd times, but there was never such a scene as who are anxious to see the champion college team. The college boys will present the same ended by saying: The south will never surteam which won the inter-collegiate championship from Yale on Thanksgiving day. The game will be a notable society as well as athletic event, and the wearers of the orange and black will undoubtedly be in large numbers in the grand stand. The Princeton alumni in this city will make the grounds lively with their college cheer. The team leaves Princeton this afternoon, and is made up as follows: Donelly, left end; Cowan, left tackle; Janeway, left guard; Jones, center: Thomas, right guard; Sharon, right tackle; Lilley, right end; Poe (captain), quarter back; Channing and Black, half back, and Ames, full back; Substitutes, Adams, Casement and Bradford. They will probably come in a private car. They will be received on their arrival here this evening by a number of leading local foot ball players. NO FLAG AT HALF MAST. Jefferson Davis Regarded as Officially Dead Since 1861.

THE PORTBAIT OF THE DEAD SOUTHERNER HANGS UNDRAPED-THE DILEMMA THAT CON-FRONTED THE WAR DEPARTMENT-REMINIS-CENCES OF DAVIS-HE WAS PLEASANT TO ALL. IN OFFICE AND OUT.

The American flag was run up to top of the War department flagstaff there all day. Inside of the building, dent Pierce. In every mouth was from New Orleans that Jefferson Davis, the exwas dead. In the archives of the War Department molder orders directing the draping of the building and the lowering of the flag on the occasion of the death of ex-Secretaries of War. In the face of all these facts the War department awoke this morning face to face with a dilemma, on one horn of which hung an established custom and on the other the law. Officially speaking, the department did not-does not-know that Jefferson Davis had died; and yet, officially speaking, the department held that he died in 1861. As a matter of fact the question of recognizing the services of Secretary Davis during the '50s at his death has at various times been a subject of discussion informally for some time past among the officials of the department, the almost universal opinion being that his condition as an "unreconstructed rebellionist" who had refused to avail himself of an opportunity to remove his own political disabilities precluded the possibility of taking any step. There were a few who held that the office and not the man should be honored, but the others continued to point to the fact that Jefferson Davis did not exist as far as the United States government was concerned, and this line of opinion prevailed this morning. SECRETARY PROCTOR'S VIEW.

Secretary Proctor had evidently made up his mind to do nothing in the case before he came to the office, and to a STAR reporter he said: "I do not see that there is anything before us in the matter. We know nothing we; know no such man. It is better to forget such things; to let them pass away from our minds,"

There is no precedent for the case whatever, although the nearest to such was the action of Secretary McCreary, February 12, 1878, in ordering the closing of the department, the ter promptly. They will probably be ready to lowering of the flag and the draping of the building on the day of the funeral of ex-Secretary Charles M. Courad of Louisiana, who was Davis' immediate predecessor in office. Conrad was a prominent rebel during the war, but his disabilities had been removed. This order was issued, however, after the funeral, about which there was a misunderstanding, so that nothing whatever was done.

In the present case, however, there is not an exact analogy, since Davis was never reconstructed. It was that fact, rather than his position in the confederacy, that caused his official oblivion at the department. Several army officers in talking about the case approved the Secretary's determination to ignore the matter, and said there was really no other course to take in view of the fact that the citizenship of Jefferson Davis has never been restored. REMEMBERS HIM AS SECRETARY.

The only man now living who served under "He was one of the best Secretaries of War officially very pleasant. He was a warm friend and a bitter enemy. I knew him many years and as a man I found him a good friend. He was a regular bull dog when he formed an opinion, for he would never let go. About the only very important event of his administra-tion was his quarrel with Gen. Scott, which was very bitter and caused a great deal of hard An officer of the army remarked today that Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis once served together under Maj. Zachary Taylor in the Black Hawk war. Lincoln at that time was a member of the Illinois state guard and Davis was an officer in the regular army.

STENOGRAPHER MURPHY'S RECOLLECTIONS OF "SENATOR" DAVIS. There are not many persons about the Capitol now who were cotemporaries of Jefferson Davis when he was in the Senate thirty years ago. Mr. E. V. Murphy, one of the official stenographers of the Senate, was a boy just beginning short-hand work during the latter part of Mr. Davis' political Mr. Davis' political career under national government. He remem-Mr. Davis well and speaks of very highly. "He was," said Mr. bers him Murphy, "a nervous, energetic speaker and very impressive. He spoke rapidly and forcibly and as if he was thoroughly in earnest. This carnestness and force made him highly effective. He was a leading man in the Senate and was right. In his speeches in the Senate he was not nearly so outspoken a secessionist as his colleague, Brown of Mississippi. Brown ap-peared to fear that Davis would stand better with the people of Mississippi than himself, and for that reason took a very radical tone in his southern speeches. But when the time for secession came he could not make a farewell address. Brown burst into tears in the office of the secretary of the Senate and said he could not do it. The galleries were crowded when Davis made his farewell render! never! never! Handkerchiefs were waved and thrown into the Senate chamber and there was an outbreak such as I have never seen in the Senate."

Speaking of Mr. Davis' personal qualities Mr. Murphy said that he was courteous and kind to "He gave strangers" said Mr. Murphy, all, "He gave strangers said Mr. Murphy, "the impression that he was reserved and unapproachable, but this was not so. His quick, nervous temperament made him easily nettled, and when he was disturbed he would sometimes make a sharp retort, but would apologize for it the next moment. He stood very high in the estimation of Senators on both sides of the chamber. His long and varied service and his practice of entertaining gave him a wide acquaintance. In those days most Senators and members lived in hotels and boarding houses.

Money was not so abundant and many of them lived in quarters which a government clerk would not now occupy. Davis, Slidell and a few others were the only southern men who kept house, and they entertained in a luxurious manner for those days, although it would not be thought so now. I recollect particularly how kind Mr. Davis was to all the employes about the Senate. He knew them all personally and would ask after them and after their families, where they had any. He complimented the stenographic reports of the Senate. He was a favorite with all the employes for another season, and that was because he would always endeavor to secure extra compensation for Several years ago Mr. Murphy wrote to Mr. Davis in regard to two pictures which a friend had secured at a sale of the collection of a picture dealer named Lamb. The history of the pictures made it probable that they had belonged to Mr. Davis. A letter from him was received by Mr. Murphy, in which he said that the pictures had been stolen from him and that the rooms of the Navy department for the he had had too much experience with pillage purpose of allowing the bureau of construc- during the war to buy back his property twice.

stances, that their remarks would be miscon strued. Representative Mills of Texas, how-ever, spoke his mind freely, to the following effect: "Mr. Davis was regarded by the southern people as one of the greatest, best and purest men in the world. We all loyed him. He was our representative man, and all of the Southern people understood that the opposi-tion he encountered and the adverse criticisms piled upon him were intended for them. His position was misunderstood in the north. Mr.

position was misunderstood in the position was misunderstood in the position was misunderstood in the position was a Union man at the beginning and basis was a Union man at the beginning and he adopted the course he did with great reluctance, but from a feeling of duty. He was deeply attached to the Union, and wanted to exhaust every means on earth to prevent a rupture. He was not a vindictive or cruel man. He had perfect confidence in cruel man. He had perfect confidence in cruel man. He had perfect confidence in will return with them to this city. The party will leave Chicago immediately after the performance Monday night and will reach here He was highly accomplished and spoke the best of English. His memory was marvellously clear, he never forgot anybody. My predecessor, Mr. Geddings. told me that My predecessor, Mr. Geddings. told me that one day Mr. Davis was addressing a crowd when a snowy-haired old man on the ouskirts expressed a desire to greet the speaker, when he had known and served under him in the Mexican war. Mr. Geddings offered to introduce him, but the old man declined, and going up to Mr. Davis, offered him his hand and asked if he recognized him. Mr. Davis fixed his eyes upon him for a moment, his mouth twitched, tears sprang into his eyes and he exclaimed: "Ward, snow has fallen on and he exclaimed: "Ward, snow has fallen on you head since I last saw you." "And that," said Mr. Mills, "was about forty years before the meeting."

WHAT GEORGIA MEN SAY. Representative Clements of Georgia said: "A good man gone! He was permitted to live to see largely modified the harsh criticism engendered by the late strife and the events in which he took such a prominent part, and the ultimate verdict of the world will be that he was both a statesman and a patriot. In time to come the north will accord in that judgment as well as the south and the rest of the world. I do not believe that any man was ever animated by more pure and patriotic motives than he was. The people of my section have the greatest reverence for him." Representative Turner of Georgia said: "Mr.

Davis' death will leave no person embittered against him, and his decease will be a matter of universal regret throughout the south. He was a man of great ability and unsurpassed public accomplishment." WASHINGTON NEWS AND GOSSIP.

LIQUOR LICENSES. There are no new developments in the liquor licenses question. The Commissioners are issuin the same office now. He remembers Mr. ing license every day now, and the attorneys for dealers, whose applications have been re-fused, are constant callers upon the Commissioners. Now and then when a knotty question comes up it is put aside for future consideration, for the Commissioners have decided to hold all licenses in which there is any doubt until the last. They will take up a case however upon special application. Licutenant Vernon's precinct will be completed in a few days, after which Licutenaut Kelly will be called up with the applications in his precinct. Thus the Commissioners will go on granting the easy cases in each of the several precincs and leaving the hard ones, particularly the "over more than four in a square kind" until the last.

The following is the result of the Commissioners' labors today. Retail Licenses—approved: Richard Cox, 201 Maryland avenue southwest; John Quinn, 302 3d street southwest; W. & J. H. STRONG PURGATIVES. Most Pills, Purgatives and Bitter Waters, which act quickly upon the bowels, irritate and often destroy the mucous coats of the stomach and bowels. Indeed their cathartic action is directly caused by the irritation of the boweis, which they produce. Their action should be soothing and stimulating instead of irritating. A continued use of such remedies produces chroate inflammation of the stomach and bowels. This often chos in dangerous disease. The use of the genuine imported Carisbad Sprudel Sait is highly recommended as an aperient, laxative and diuretic, because its action is due solely to its solvent and stimulating properties. It soothes and allays inflammation, and is therefore much preferable to all strong purgatives and Bitter Waters.
